DEMURRER SUSTAINED
In Kelly Case and Appeal Taken by Prosecution.

Special Judge Robert Crenshaw, at Cadiz Thursday, sustained the demurrer of the defense in the case of the commonwealth against John Kelly, indicted for misappropriating about $4,800 of funds in his hands as master commissioner. The prosecution appealed the case, which goes to the higher court for a general construction of the statute under which the indictment was found, which has never been passed upon by the appellate court.

J. B. WALKER ENDORSED

By Church Hill Grange In Strong Resolutions.

MEMBER STATE BOARD

Has Had Much Experience
as Lecturer at Farmers' Institutes.

The delegates from the First appellate court district to the annual Farmers' Institute for farmers of the State, to be held at Shelbyville on February 26, 27 and 28 next, will have as a candidate before them for member of the State Board of Agriculture, Forestry and Immigration J. Bush Walker, of this county, one of the best-known farmers in this section of Kentucky. Mr. Walker desires membership on the board to succeed W. T. Harris, of Union county.

He is well qualified for the place to which he aspires. He has been engaged from time to time as an assistant to the State Agricultural Department at Frankfort, using in the lecture field at country meetings of the State Board. He also has been a member of the State Board of Agriculture and Forestry, and is now a member of the State Board of Agriculture and Forestry.

The Church Hill Grange in this section has been a leader in the movement for rural improvement, and in the election of Mr. Walker to the position of lecturer on the subject of agriculture and forestry, the members of the Grange have expressed their hearty endorsement of him for the place.

He has many friends in this home county who hope to see him realize his ambition.

FINET'S MEETING

Of the Athenaeum Held Thursday Evening.

The Athenaeum meeting Thursday night was one of the most interesting of the series. Excellent papers were read by Col. Josiah Henry on "The Negro Soldiers," and by Prof. Barksdale Hamlet on "The Equalization of Opportunity as a Factor in Social Development." Both papers were able and thoughtful presentations of the subjects treated and were discussed until nearly 12 o'clock. Eighteen members were present. The resignation of Mr. W. McL. Cowan was accepted.

FREAK OF NATURE.

Thereby Hangs Two Tails,
Not One But Two.

Squire M. B. King, of this county, reports a freak of nature which he found on his farm yesterday morning. Going to the place where he kept his sheep he found a lamb. While examining it he found out that there was something unusual about the caudal appendage of the little animal. An inspection proved that it had a double tail. They are perfectly formed. The tails fork about three inches from the body. Squire King says he has been raising sheep about 25 years, but this is the first thing of the kind that he has ever seen.

Trust Must Pay.

The Court of Appeals upheld the Kentucky Anti-trust Law in an opinion affirming the judgment of the Trimble Circuit Court fining the International Harvester Company of America $2,000 for a combination to eliminate competition.

Mayfield Number.

Physicians who examined the charred body of the man found in Mayfield after the burning of a boarding house in which he had been living, reported to the coroner that the man had been shot through the heart and his skull fractured. No clue to the identity of the body has been found.

JAMESTOWN CONTEST.

Interest Increasing Now
With Each Day.

Differences in the Jamestown contest is increasing with each day, though very few February coupons have been sent in yet. We must again remind the voters that coupons for each month must be received at this office during the month of their date or they cannot be counted. The only exception to this rule is that where parties have coupons and cannot hand them in before the close of the month, they may mail them at end of the month. But the envelope MUST bear postmark corresponding to date of coupon. On the evening of February 1 we received one envelope containing twelve coupons and five of them bore date of December. They were not counted. The following is the standing of contestants at yesterday's count:

CUP FOR SEA RACE

BENNETT TROPHY FOR POWER CRAFT ON LONG COURSE.

Prize Which Is to Be Contested for by Small Boats in Race From New York to Bermuda.

Fifty years ago, when James Gordon Bennett was a contestant in the transatlantic mid-winter schooner race for a $1,000 prize, he was one of the first to run a deep sea race. Today, he has come forward as a patron of another kind of deep-sea racing in which the sail gives way to the internal combustion engine by giving a cup valued at $1,000 for a race of power craft from New York to Bermuda.

The owner of one of the notable sporting acts of the closing year in yachting, and forecasts an event next June which will take a historic place in the records of the sport.

There has never yet been contested a successful power boat race, power craft, French Island and two days ago in the Mediterranean from Algiers to Nice, and made a failure of it, as their boats were not of the sea boat type but slightly disguised cruisers, which a storm scattered in disarray.

We have had on this coast two successful boat races one from New York to Philadelphia in 1896, and one from Vancouver to New York last summer. These were promoted by Captain Thomas Fleming Day of New York, who also has the credit of launching, long-distance racing on land, too.

When Mr. Day started his deep-sea racing idea, as a result of many years of deep-water cruising, the press of New York, with few exceptions, assumed an attitude equivalent in the language of the street to "handling him a lemon."

In this New York Herald was no exception, and when Mr. Day proposed his little squadron of racers for Bermuda late May that paper showed but lukewarm interest in the venture, and printed considerable about the dangers of the undertaking.

On the arrival of the racers at Bermuda, we learned that the steam yacht Lysham, who had started on board, steamed into the harbor.

Mr. Bennett was at once impressed with the true sporting spirit of the men in the little racers, and called the Herald a few pointed remarks, which resulted in a great change of heart, and the Herald now supports Mr. Day and the deep water idea.

Now Mr. Bennett's offer of a cup for a power race to Bermuda is made through Mr. Day, and the Herald naturally views the situation with enthusiasm.

The conditions for the race are not yet prepared as you, though the main one is that the boat shall not be over 60 feet nor under 40 feet overall length. The race will be started June 8.

With this ample notice given, it is expected that boats will be built specially for the race.

The 30 foot launch shown herewith was designed by Mr. E. B. Schrock for the coming race. The cabin arrangements are very liberal, consisting of a main cabin eleven and a half feet long, with two large lockers at the after end; two berths, with extension seats in front, thereby providing sleeping accommodations for four persons; a sideboard, buffet and lockers for chinaware, glassware, etc.

Opposite from the passage-way to the engine room are found the toilet and galley. The toilet will be fitted with necessary fittings such as wash basin, closet and mirror and linen closet, while in the galley will be found a dresser and sink with dish racks, etc.

The engine room is laid out to two three cylinder four cycle engines of about 15-horse power each, which should give the launch a speed of about 12 miles an hour.

A stateroom occupies the forward end and contains a large double berth, locker and private toilet. This gives the owner accommodations for six persons in addition to the crew.

The launch is steered from a bridge deck just above the engine room, and there is an auxiliary gear in the cockpit.

A stateroom occupies the forward end and contains a large double berth, locker and private toilet. This gives the owner accommodations for six persons in addition to the crew.

The engine room is laid out to two three cylinder four cycle engines of about 15-horse power each, which should give the launch a speed of about 12 miles an hour.

The board of supervisors of Clarksville, Miss., has passed resolutions ordering the Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Company to immediately remove its poles—despite a new rate of rentals was not into effect. It is claimed that the company has lately raised its telephone rates without improving the services.

A careful reading of County Judge Bingham's somewhat over-heated "reply" to the Kentuckian's references to the recent lawlessness in Trigg county, following the Judge's controversy with the Courier-Journal, discloses nothing worthy of notice. His unfavorable opinion of the editor of the Kentuckian is a personal matter that the public can have no interest in. A residence of 30 years in the same community ought to establish a character for a man that now-pauper criticism cannot destroy. At any rate, the question of character is not raised with the question of fact that have been so well established that even the Record exclaims: "Who ever heard of a person being fool enough to state that there was not any lawlessness being committed in any county?" Two intuitions or statements in the Judge's card would be important if true. One, a veiled charge that the editor of the Kentuckian has been subsidized and the other the reckless statement that Hopkinsville is honey-combed with gambling halls said to be under police protection. As these things are not true, it is not worth while to attach any importance to what the Judge says or thinks.

A Campaign of Education.

The Kentuckian has always felt it incumbent upon itself to command its readers anything that tends to promote the interest of the community in general but especially in matters effecting its material prosperity, because whatever makes for the general welfare of the people is of necessity, in some measure, the interest of this paper.

Therefore, if from only a selfish motive, we are constrained to call the attention of our readers to the work the management of the First National Bank of Hopkinsville has undertaken in its efforts to induce the young men and women of the city and surrounding country to think about their future welfare.

Their desire that all the boys and girls in this community shall be inoculated with the "saving habit." The virus is clean, healthy and wholesome and guaranteed to insure their future against that deadly disease, the trinity of misery, WANT, PENURY and WOE.

To this end the First National Bank has adopted a new savings system to educate and encourage our boys and girls in the art of small savings. Their plan is simple and practical and commands the serious attention of every one. Through the medium of the Little Pocket Savings Bank, a cut of which can be seen in the half-page ad. in this issue, anyone with serious intention of becoming a steady depositor can open a savings account for $1.00 and secure the loan of one of the Little Pocket Banks in which to accumulate their nickels, dimes and quarters, and which they will be expected to bring to the First National Bank at least once each month to have its contents taken out, counted and credited in their bank book. The First National Bank guarantees 3 per cent. interest compounded semi-annually.

The First National Bank undertook this work only after the gravest consideration and did its management not believe that an immediate, generous and hearty response would be given the announcement of its plan, by the fathers, mothers and young people of Hopkinsville, it never would be adopted.

To the Fathers, Mothers, Young Men and Young women of Hopkinsville!

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE

First National Bank

desires your serious attention on a matter pregnant with interest to all who believe in the serious question of money saving. The first and most serious consideration of parents is for the future success and happiness of their children and it is the bounden duty of every father and mother to encourage the children in the habit of saving what they earn, and it is the first duty of a boy or girl to form the habit of saving what they earn, thus laying the nucleus for success in life and a comfortable competence for old age.

NOW LISTEN.

The First National Bank has adopted a new system to encourage money saving among all classes of money earners in Hopkinsville and vicinity, which is at once the most practical and encouraging proposition that has ever been devised to encourage savings. Remember, it is doing the small things in life that makes possible the accomplishment of great things, for just as sure as man is mortal or to err is human, the man who fails to save the nickels, dimes and quarters will never possess the dollars in hundreds or thousands.

Here's the Proposition.

We ask every man and woman, boy and girl to open a savings account in the First National Bank, beginning with a deposit of at least one dollar. We will pay 3 per cent interest, compounded semi-annually. In order to aid you in this laudable work we have purchased a large number of beautiful steel pocket banks, morocco-leather bound, and most attractive, which we propose to lend to every man, woman, boy or girl, who opens a savings account with us for $1.00 with the serious purpose in view of adding to it each month. We wish it explicitly understood that the little pocket bank is not a toy, is not to be given away as a souvenir, nor sold, but must be regarded as solely the property of The First National Bank and as much as any other part of its assets. We are taking these very seriously in instituting this work and believe it will prove the greatest campaign of education ever inaugurated in this community for the young people.

Our Solicitors will Call at the home of every citizen in Hopkinsville and the country contiguous and we bespeak for them a cordial reception and close attention while they explain our new system and its merits.

Call at the Bank today and have the system fully explained. We know the people of Hopkinsville and our farming community pretty well, but we wish to know them better. That is why we are doing this work. Come in today, tomorrow, every day and get better acquainted.

serious man fund of humor, that effervesces and bubbles over in his intercourse with men, and which does not attempt to restrain while at the altar. He doesn't want to restrain it, because it's one of his greatest levers with which to lift up and turn over and put to work the callous consciences of hardened, worldly men. Though an educated man, his vocabulary is composed entirely of words that the most illiterate can understand—he seems never to have treasured up in his memory any of the big words and high-sounding phrases to which some evangelists are addicted. He can see the dark side of life and point it out in horrible detail and yet in the most winning way fix the gaze of his auditors on the bright side of this life and how happy a man can be if he will do the right instead of the wrong. Another peculiarity of Mr. Holcomb's methods is his relentless proscribing of apathetic members of the church. He thinks the church must be right before it can expect to do any great good for the Lord. Though he condemns sin everywhere, he is one of the most charitable of men. He seems to love everybody, but hates sin in all life, and has no patience with those who persist in their evil doing.

His sermon Thursday night emphasized the statement contained in the text that God is faithful to forgive the sinner who truly repents, and must fully bring out the fact that men will not confess their sins to god, as well as to "own up" to their fellow men whom they have wronged.

Quite a number signified their desire to be prayed for, and at the call for those who have repented and asked for forgiveness to go forward half a dozen responded.

"Generally debilitated for years. Had sick headaches, lacked ambition, was worn-out and all run-down. But dock Blood Bitters made me a well woman."—Mrs. Chas. Freitoy, Moosup Conn.

In Case of Lucas against Telephone Company.

Court of Appeals Holds That Assessor Cannot List Stocks and Bonds.

In an opinion by Judge Hobson the Court of Appeals upheld the judgment of the Christian Circuit Court in a case of the Commonwealth against the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Auditor's Agent Frank A. Lucas sought to assess the appellee company in Christian County Court for the years 1900 to 1904, both inclusive, on five million dollars' worth of bonds, stocks, notes and cash, alleging failure to list same. The County Court and Circuit Court held against the agent and dismissed this petition.

The court here, in upholding the lower courts, says such property is not to be listed with the Assessor of the home company of the corporation, but reported to the State Board of valuation and assigned by that body.

The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved

Dr. J. H. Snoddy, of Alton, Ill., has discovered a positive cure and preventative for this terrible disease. He has had it in use for ten years and has saved millions of dollars' worth of cholera hogs for the public. The directions for its use are simple and easy to follow. Any practical farmer can stop the worst outbreak of cholera that ever came and save every hog that is able to take the treatment.

This treatment is not an expense to a farmer, because it clears his herd of every character of worm and parasite and puts them in such a thrifty condition that the extra gain they will make from the effect of this treatment will return the farmer $5 in this extra gain for every dollar's worth of the remedy used properly and right.

It is the greatest worm remedy known to medical science. It pays a farmer to keep his hogs clear of worms with it. When the hog is clear of worms and in good thrifty condition it is rather a hard matter to infect him with cholera without directly exposing him to the germ.

It pays to use the medicine whether there is any cholera around or not.

This wonderful remedy is manufactured by the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill., and is for sale by Planters Hardware Co., incorporated, of Hopkinsville, and E. W. Stegar & Dixon, at Masonville, Ky. Any one calling on either of these firms can get Dr. Snoddy's free book on hog cholera, free of charge. Every farmer should have one.

BREEDING BUFF ROCKS.

HERE is no rule that is infallible. Nature beats us all our more frequently than we win our objective. With close observation and such knowledge as experience gives, we now and then do succeed in controlling nature, and gaining our desired results.

If these were not so, we could never improve on the control the breeding of any live animals. I will first take up size, and how to get it.

The only way I know of breeding in re-sized size is to breed from large boned stock. Large boned birds, as a rule, are coarser and more angular than the smaller boned birds. The latter are smoother and rounder, and appeal more to one's fancy. A large boned bird is told at a glance by the size of his shanks. A breeder can increase the natural size of his birds by mating them with larger boned birds of either male or female size, and also by breeding cock birds to pullets, and cockerels to hens.

It has been my experience, which has been very strongly corroborated by the results I have seen in hundreds of other breeders' yards, that the individual who cares for feeds, and raises the young stock has more to do with the size of the chicken than any line of mating. No person can raise chickens to perfection, or to the fullest size, who tries to do so in a brick or dirt yard, unless he gives the growing chick every kind of food that nature requires, and plenty of it. The person who raises a flock of chickens having good dry roosting quarters that are not at all crowded, free range, plenty of good well balanced foods, with grit, charcoal, shell, bone, and meat, when they can get it any time, and also the table scraps and kitchen leavings thrown where they can pick at them every day. I say this person will not complain of his stock being undersized; his birds are always large, and grown to perfection, and in condition to kill for market at any time. From such birds as these we get our standard of sizes and weights.

Next we will visit the neighbor across the way who raises, or attempts to raise, about the same number of chickens of the same variety and strain. He complains that his chickens will not grow, and are very much undersize, and never in condition to kill; that there is no money in chickens, anyway; that he is disgusted with the business, and is going to give it up; that his chickens would eat him out of house and home, etc., etc.; and that he can get no money or return from them still, as they will not lay except when eggs are most plentiful and as to marketing his chickens, they are never in fit condition to kill. Now, why such a condition? The reason is most obvious. This neighbor was brought up to think that chickens did not count for anything. A little damaged corn or wheat will for anything else, or some dirty screening scattered about once a day, was all the feeding necessary. And as to roosting quarters, they were of the makeshift kind, dirty ill ventilated, and very crowded. That to make chickens pay, the feed and housing must cost nothing, and all receipts must be clear profit.

The only way to raise poultry to full sized perfection and standard weights after making carefully selected matings of the parent stock, is first, not in the slightest degree, at any time allow the growing chickens to be crowded. Second, feed liberally all of the best balanced foods they will eat with relish. Third, give them as much free range as you possibly can, and all greens they will eat, such as grasses, cabbage, lettuce, etc. If they cannot get this at will it must be supplied to them. Fourth keep meat, bone, shell, grit, and charcoal, where they can get them at all times.

There is nothing better to make young chickens grow than the scraps from the table and kitchen. Milk, if plentiful, or can be had at small cost, is one of the very best of growing foods; from the time a chick is one week old up to the time he is fully grown, there is nothing better; but do not cut down on the other feeds; give it in conjunction with them at all times.

There is nothing better to make young chickens grow than the scraps from the table and kitchen.

To sum up: In growing chickens to the greatest perfection and size, care and feed are more than half; mating and strain the rest.

We will now take up "Breeding for Shape." Our American Standard of Excellence outlines a perfect Plymouth Rock male and female, and the shape adopted at the "ideal" was the result of the most painstaking care, best judgment and skill of our foremost poultry artists and fanciers. It is certainly a most beautiful and characteristic study.

How can we breed shape? Symmetry is harmony of all the parts conforming to the "standard" ideal. There are numerous theories as to how to control both shape and sex, but as they are rather deep for me, I will not attempt to mention them. I will only state what I have learned in my own experience.

I look more for size, shape, and color to come from the male, and constitution and disposition from the female. However, we will mostly find that both the male and female are nearly equally responsible for each of these characteristics. The surest way to attain the ideal in shape is by mating the male and female, and this rather goes to prove that both have their influence.

For example, in one line of my Rock breeding I find my young stock are large and well developed, but very long and angular in back, so much so that in the show room they will be cut severely on shape. In another line of my Rock breeding I find my young stock are rather small and short in back, but a decided rise at the cushion, but otherwise well developed, making them too blocky in shape and off type, so much so that in the show room they would also be cut severely for being off shape in the other extreme. Now to breed to improve both and get nearer the ideal, I would mate a large, long, angular backed male of the first lot of the short backed, high cushioned, blocky shaped females of my second lot, and would expect their female progeny to have greatly improved shape or type, the back would be lengthened considerably, and the cushion most likely removed. I would also mate the short backed, full saddled, blocky shaped male birds of the second lot to the long angular backed females of the first lot, and expect their male progeny to be greatly improved in shape; their backs would be lengthened, and there would be a gentle concave sweep of saddle on to tail, conforming more with type, and giving much better symmetry. And so in inbreeding for any desired change in shape or section. But this is not always obtained by mating opposites; still it is by mating, and there is where the individual skill of the breeder comes in. No one can breed successfully who gets his theories and knowledge only by rule. As in inbreeding for any desired change in shape or section. But this is not always obtained by mating opposites; still it is by mating, and there is where the individual skill of the breeder comes in. No one can breed successfully who gets his theories and knowledge only by rule.

They had reached that stage of engagement when there is usually more or less speculation as to the future on the part of the bride or the groom.

"He doesn't seem, Tom, dear, that he could ever speak a cross word to each other, does it, doesn't he mind from his own laptop?" "Never, sweetheart," declared Tom, stoutly.

"But, dear," she persisted, "if I mind I say if of some morning the look should be burned and the eye cold, and you're intended to be just a bit frosty when we hit class, what would you do?"

She looked up into his face anxiously, and he felt that his reply must be one that would fully reassure her. After a moment's thought he exclaimed, triumphantly: "I'd go down town and get my breakfast," Puck.

TOYS THAT REFLECT HISTORY.
Children's Playthings Show the Spirit of the Age.

A little of every age of civilization is in its toys. The future historian will have no difficulty in reconstructing our age if he finds merely a few toys in dusty garrets or museums.

Do you know what the little children in the early days of the persecuted Christians played with? I have always thought it at once pathetic and horrible; they played with little toy instruments of martyrdom.

So-to-day childhood plays with the things of scenes. What went over us this year from Paris and Nuremberg were toys of wireless telegraphy, electrostatic machines, electric tramways, automobiles driven by alcohol or electricity, electric torpedo boats that plunge and come to the surface again, cinematographs, for the magic lantern, is decomposed, and chromatographs, that present colored and moving pictures; these scientific fancies of the moment and a dozen others.

I looked at them one and all, and amazement grew upon me. What kind of a little boy is he who plays with these somber and intricate toys?

And then I remembered that even the little twentieth century boy is one of the wise people; in his untiring wisdom he knows that toys—ever ruhmkorff coils and goosier luminous tubes and voltmeters—are best when broken, and I foresaw for him splendid moments, inquiring, destructive.—Everybody's.

GREEN SCIENTIST SAVED.

Here is a curious little story about Sir James Simpson, the man who introduced the use of chloroform into surgery, and a peril which he escaped, as recorded by Lyon Playfair Simpson, when busy with his researches into the subject of anaesthetics, called one day on Playfair and asked if he had anything new likely to produce anesthesia. Playfair had just prepared a liquid which seemed worthy of trial. Simpson, who knew no fear, prepared instantly to test it on himself. This Playfair refused to allow until it had been tried on rabbits. Two were procured and placed under the effects of the anesthetic. Next day Simpson proposed to try it on himself. "We might as well see how the rabbits have fared," said Playfair. They found both the animals dead.

OF GREEK ORIGIN.

The couch was probably introduced into Greece by the Assyrians, for it appears in the Parthenon frieze in the British museum, and the vase room there and in the Louvre give frequent illustrations of ancient Greek couches which were made of bronze instead of wood, and also of the stuff used in upholstering them. The Greeks in their turn taught the Romans the use of the couch, for Greek artists and workmen were employed in Rome. During meals men reclined on couches each made to hold three persons; a low rail protected the back, and three of these seats surrounded the table at an entertainment, leaving the fourth side open for service. Couches were also carried and used as litter.

SOME SATISFACTION.

The excursion train was on its return trip, filled with tired and sleepy passengers. It had come to a stop, but to those who looked out of the windows no station or other buildings were in sight. Fully ten minutes it stood, and the passengers were wondering where they were or what the trouble might be.

Just then a young man appeared at the front door of the car.

"Train stuck?" he called.
"Well," said a passenger up front, "the engine stopped to kerosene, and we are now."

A DILEMMA.

"I wonder how it fails to have so much money you don't know what to do with it."

HIS REAL OBJECTION.

"Waitress—You needn't make such a fuss about a fly in your tea."

FOR THE HEADACHE SUFFERER.

Sleeping with His Head High Will Frequently Bring Relief.

"It is so strange, doctor," complained a woman patient, recently, "that when I have had a perfectly good night's sleep I should so often wake up with headache."

"How many pillows do you have under your head?" asked the physician.

"One thin pillow," was the answer, "severely two four thick ones," the doctor advised, adding that many congestive headaches were caused by people sleeping with their heads too low. The blood settles in the head and the sufferer wakes with a dull feeling or throbbing pain. Persons subject to catarrhal headache should be careful to have their heads high enough at night.

In case of headache or facial neuralgia where mustard would be perhaps too severe, a mixture of white of egg and red pepper may be safely used. It will be found quite as effective as the mustard, but it will blister nor leave any slight red blotches even on a tender skin. It can be safely applied at the base of the brain for that "headache in the back of the neck" which begins to be complained of at about the time when the storm and stress of the holidays have exhausted the nervous energy.—Harper's Bazaar.

TONS OF SOOT.

A scientific investigator in Cincinnati has been trying to arrive at a definite idea of the amount of soot deposited in the city in the course of a year. One of his tests was to place two buckets, three-fourths filled with water on 11 roofs in different parts of the city. At the end of three months a careful analysis of the contents of the buckets to ascertain the amount of carbonaceous matter was made. The result is that in the down town area the falling soot amounts to 511 tons a month, or 18 tons daily. On a square mile of the city the soot deposit is 171 tons a month, or 343,728 pounds, an average of several pounds to each inhabitant. In one of the suburbs the soot in the bucket was 461 grams to the square foot for a period of 30 days. For the same time the deposit at a central point in the city was 22,550 grams to the square foot.

RELIC OF OLD ROME.

Near the Lurine lake, to the north of Baiae, Italy, where the villas of Romans of imperial times crowded each other to the water's edge, and where, in consequence, to this day the ground is full of archaeological treasures, a very fine mosaic has just been discovered. In form it is a parallelogram, measuring about five and a half yards by nearly ten yards. The piece represents a hunting scene in which there are many wild beasts and several hunters, the favorite subject for large mosaics in those days. It has been bought for $1,500 by the ministry of public works for the decoration of the great monument of Victor Emmanuel in Rome, which is slowly taking form, and will eventually dominate all old Rome.

"Stand on the platform! That's easy—said the donkey!"

VARIETY.

"It was so much I could do to keep from giggling when Miss Gossamer remarked that her dance was so versatile."

"Meaning Dunphy? Well, he is rather versatile."

"Nonsense! He's a regular idiot."

"Yes, but he's so many different kinds of an idiot."

AN EASY WAY OUT.

The trial Manager—I can't lose your play. It's entitled too long for the stage.

"Another Playwright? Well, can you not lengthen the stage?"

Weakness of Legs.

Weakness of the legs is a trouble appearing in young birds, cockerels more often than in pullets, and is seen usually between three and five months of age. The larger breeds are more prone to this trouble than the smaller and more active birds.

This weakness is caused by pushing for growth by feeding too much fattening food and condiments, thereby increasing the weight of the body beyond the ability of the legs to support it.

If your birds are getting into this condition you will notice at first unsteadiness in gait. They move slowly and the limbs slightly shake. In a week's time they can hardly keep up on their legs, and when feeding will sit down so the body is nearly on the ground. Looking the birds over, you will find little to attract your eye, except the weakness of the legs. The bird otherwise appears to be healthy. The feathers are bright, the eye clear and the appetite good. As the days pass he loses his desire for food; is picked upon by his brothers; lies multiply upon him; he becomes thin; the skin grows dry and crackly.

In the very beginning of the leg weakness remove all causes of trouble. Spice, corn and corn meal, buckwheat and rye should not be fed for weeks to such birds. Have regular times to give the meal and make each bird work for part of his food. If possible, have sick birds by themselves to avoid imposition by the other chicks. A grass run with shade and cool water, will help cure these cases. If you have time and patience, one-tenth of a grain of quinine given to each bird with leg weakness every morning will help bring up the chick to health again.

Cockerels often are susceptible to leg weakness, especially if allowed to run with hens, causing them to pay too much attention to the hens before their strength is sufficient to warrant it. In such cases confine the cockerels by themselves and give them strengthening food. On a well regulated poultry farm the cockerels and pullets should be separated from each other. Each will do better.

It is always well to examine the bird carefully to determine whether it may not be rheumatism, which is usually accompanied by a swelling of the joints. Inland P. Journal.

Honor to Whom Honor is Due.

(Written for Fancy Fowles.)

This was suggested to me most forcibly since our late Nashville show—one of the largest shows ever held in the South; one that had both quality and quantity, numbering upward of 3,000 actual entries of chickens of every known variety, and also three varieties of turkeys, Buff, White Holland, and 90 head of our large beautiful Bronze.

There were exhibitors and visitors from New York to Louisiana. The crowd could hardly pass and repass in the halls—all crowding in after awards were made. There were four judges—Marshall, Campbell, Hansen and Shaw, all dreading to handle and judge the turkeys, competition being so great. Every exhibitor was anxious to see what was to be done over with, for they had been cooped up in a dark cellar five days with ducks and geese and very little fresh air to breathe, or food to eat, but plenty fresh water. Each bird weighed, had fallen off from three to six pounds, broken feathers from fighting, scabs and sores, all for the judge to cut for, "all that was in sight"—no mercy on the empty, baggy crop. Finally the awards were made in time for them to return home. Some 95 and 952 birds winning "prizes over 95 and 952 point birds, or at least this was the case with 1" Crkl, when clerk marked the score as the judge called it out in the cellar before they went to the office. Who is to blame we cannot say, but we do know it was very expensive advertising, to not get our first dues, and haphazard work is not justice to anyone. Right never wrongs anyone, and wrong never benefits only for a short while. Some of the best specimens of Bronze turkeys in the show did not even get a place in the awards.

Now, this will break down any association, and I hope hereafter our shows will be conducted on a different plan. Another feature I would like to place before the associations is, that I think turkeys should be judged first and given as comfortable, well-lighted apartments as any bird in the show. Why? Because new air is food. Birds get all the fresh air they can get on rare occasions. Foul air and confinement is a punishment to them. In confinement they will fall away from a half to a pound a day, no matter how well fed they may be. With chickens they will fatten every day after the first day or so. Then they keep turkeys until the very last to judge them. We have them in pink of condition when we get there, but by the time judging is done a week later, they cannot be in any shape to be judged.

Now, this is a show is misleading to the buyer. Seeing the awards one is led to believe theirs is the best, and will probably purchase on their winnings, when, truly, merit did not win. I believe fair dealings to all, is the only way any association can live. See, if any association will break it down in a few years. Then in all shows we hope to give "Honor to whom honor is due."

The contest is open to any young lady making her home in Christian county. For each year's subscription to the Kentuckian at $2.00 the subscriber will be entitled to cast 40 votes.

Our contest began Nov. 15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

YOU choose the candidate—WE don't. The minute a vote is cast for a young woman she becomes a candidate and her name is placed upon the published list, together with the total vote cast for her up to the time the list is published.

When a subscription is received at this office the subscriber is first credited with the amount of his subscription and the number of votes his subscription represents is credited to the candidate named by him.

The vote will be COUNTED EVERY FRIDAY at noon and each candidate will be credited with her new vote and her total vote to date and the result will be published in the next issue of the Kentuckian.

WONDERFUL MUSEUMBOSTON'S SCIENTIFIC AND ART TREASURES LACK ROOM.Present Quarters Too Small and a New and Larger
Building Is to Be Ready In Three Years.While American museums have nearly drawn largely upon the treasures of old Europe to build their collections, it has remained for this country to take the lead in providing a suitable setting for art treasures. A new point of view in the housing of the collections among the countries of the world is being adopted in Boston. In plane which have recently been taken in Boston for a group of buildings to accommodate the Museum of Fine Arts, founded in 1870 and situated for many years past in an ornate structure fronting on Copley square, hard by the famous Boston Public Library.The new museum will be the most perfectly designed institution of its kind in the world, for its plans are based upon elaborate studies made among European and American art museums by a special committee of experts. At the same time, exhaustive investigation of the local history and surroundings of objects of art have been conducted with the aid of specialists from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. When, three years hence, removal from the present overburdened and unsuitable building has been made, possibly the museum will be housed in an art collection never before and entirely in a way to make them most accessible to the American public.The modern art museum is much more than a collection of paintings and sculpture gathered at random. It is a definite and well-arranged place that its collections become an epitome of ancient and modern civilization as revealed in art. There are objects for example in the Boston museum which were fashioned when the earliest collection in the world was still in the hands of the ancients.The present pattern in the conduct of our departments of art in oriental art is as follows: Japanese, Chinese and Oriental would be the European paintings.It is especially to the collection of several works of Greek art contained in the Museum of Fine Arts that the visitor should be directed.
The majority of the setting up of these objects is in present process. The casts of plaster casts are large, some of the most recent and the most recent absent or original works
